Out of the Storms

Make me to go in the path of thy commandments; for therein do I delight.

Ps.119:35

What is it that God wants from us? Sometimes we may wonder that when we are going through a trial.

We may face desperate situations and say, "Lord, if you will just get me through this one, I will do whatever you ask." Oh you may be thinking, "I would never say that."

The truth is crisis makes us examine our relationship with the Lord. It causes us to ask some important questions about our walk.

If we are living according to God's Word and following His guidance, we can go through the worse trails with the assurance of God's presence, and His presence is the basis of a precious relationship. If, however, we are living our lives according to our own purposes and desires, when crisis comes we do not experience that peace and comfort.

I don't want anything to interfere with that relationship.

Lately God has convicted me about the quality of time I spend with Him. It is very easy to check off a prayer list and Bible reading without investing time in expressing my love and adoration for Him. Perhaps God is convicting you of an area of your life that needs to be fine-tuned so that you can delight in your relationship with Him.
