

Remember His Works

Remember His marvelous works which He hath done; His wonders and the judgments of His mouth –Psalm 105:5

“I will remember, I will remember, I will remember the works of thy hands” is the first line to a song I heard this week. As I thought about the words, I also thought about how my relationship with Jesus Christ focuses on the present. My thoughts are on how I need God’s grace and mercy for today and how I need Him to provide my needs and the needs of others.

Psalm 105:5 challenged me to concentrate on His marvelous works. When we see a beautiful sunset, or watch the leaves turn gold, yellow, and red, or hold a new born baby we are reminded of His awesome creation. The way our bodies function and our mind works leaves us humbled by His mighty power. We are astounded by His authority to hold the universe together.

We need to spend time meditating on His magnificent work of salvation, praising Him for limitless love, amazing grace, remarkable forgiveness, and boundless mercy. Our hearts wonder how He could have sacrificed so much for us.

We should praise Him for answered prayers. Remember how He was there with us in our darkest trials. He was our rock when we were ready to slip. He has provided our needs every day. He is all sufficient. He has always done what is best for us. He has protected us when we were in perilous situations. He has sustained us when we felt hopeless; He has been relentless in His care and provision. HE IS FAITHFUL!
